Alan Bradbury

...holds a Masters degree in environmental law and is a partner at Minter Ellison. He is a former president of the National Environmental Law Association and lectures in planning law in the postgraduate program in law at the ANU

Susie Brown

...is a lawyer with a great interest in environmental law and she is past chairperson and deputy chairperson of the Environmental Defender's Office (ACT). In September 2003 she began a twelve month placement in Cambodia working on law reform and legal education programs in environmental law and indigineous land rights.

Alice Campey

...has a background in environmental management and holds a masters degree in environmental law. At the time of writing she was working as project officer at the Conservation Council of the South East Region & Canberra.

Nicola Davies

...trained as an environmental lawyer and for five years has been the Director of the Conservation Council of the South East Region & Canberra. In that role she is a member of the Expert Reference Group to the Bushfire Recovery Taskforce, established after the January 2003 bushfires, and a number of ACT ministerial advisory committees.

Rod Griffiths

...is a chartered accountant who has been on the Environmental Defender's Office executive since 1996 and involved in the conservation movement for over twenty years. He has a particular interest in conservation reserve management.

Clare Henderson

... is a consultant working on environment, disarmament and health issues with the community sector and local, state and Commonwealth governments. Clare has been engaged by the EDO on several occasions to assist with preparation of policy submissions.

Hanna Jaireth

...is a volunteer member of the management committee of the Environmental Defender's Office (ACT) and of several IUCN Commissions and working groups. She has a longstanding private interest in the law and politics of ecologically sustainable development.

Amy Land

...studied art in Wollongong and law in Canberra and was the founding coordinator of the Canberra Greenpeace Local Group. She heard about the EDO at the National Environment Conference in 2001 and volunteered to do some legal work but when she said she could draw pictures, she was asked to do that instead!

Andrew Macintosh

...is a lawyer with qualifications in commerce and environmental management. He is currently working as environmental advisor to Senator Andrew Bartlett, leader of the Australian Democrats.

Julia Pitts

...holds a Masters in Law, specialising in environmental law from the University of London. For the last twelve years she has worked in Australia and the Asia Pacific region on a range of mainly 'brown' environmental/legal issues and, having recently undertaken specialist training in the USA, is currently interested in mediating environmental and public policy disputes

Anne Rawson

...is an editor, writer, retired lawyer, jam-maker and long-term volunteer at the Canberra Environment Centre and Conservation Council.
